“If a child can't learn the way we teach, maybe we should teach the way they learn” - Ignacio Estrada.

Students have pledged to be the custodians of their cherished institution and uphold its ideals. While providing the finest mentorship for excellence in academics, culture and aesthetics, MVP engenders the responsibility in each student to be the light for others, to lead fearlessly, and to lead with a conscience. The teachers of MVP have endeavoured to find the potential of each child, who is a born genius.

As children embark on journeys unto the unknown, we should fill their young hearts with courage and conviction. We must equip them with the skills and abilities . We should provide them an environment conducive to learning, imagining and achieving. We expect them to meet academic excellence, holistic development, and responsible citizenship.

Through the synergised efforts of teachers and parents, we should ensure that they soar to great heights and create a world full of peace and harmony.

INTERVIEW OF AN EX-MVPIAN

PRAKHAR MAHESHWARI

Manager - Export Sales and Marketing
(Sheeting) at Welspun
Global Brands Ltd.

Let us know about your school life, your family and your achievements.

My school life is an inseparable and cherished part of my life. It has mended me into the man I am today. Be it in terms of shaping my career with good academic records, or helping me realise my untapped potential in extra curricular activities and sports. I had the privilege of having a family that not only gave me independence in shaping my career but also supported every decision of mine. My father being a chartered accountant and mother being a phd in Chemistry, I had the best all round support one could ask for. There have been many achievements, big and small, through out my journey. Right now when I sit down to stroll down my memory lane I can remember only a few notable ones - participating in state level chess tournaments at a very young age of 13-14 years, securing 10/10 CGPA in my 10th boards and then continuing the legacy and being the science batch topper with 95% in 12th boards of 2014 passing batch of SBR Maheshwari Vidyapeeth, Further completing course in Computer Engineering from Nirma University, then moving ahead and securing 99.5 percentile in MBA exam and pursuing MBA in International Business from a prestigious institute - Indian Institute of Foreign Trade, and then finally having to crack the interviews and work with some of the biggest conglomerates of India such as Aditya Birla Group and Welspun (current).

How did you overcome obstacles in your journey to success ?

In my journey of life, whenever I faced any obstacle and failed or stumbled upon it, I always looked at the positive aspect - as to if not this then what is the other field which I had left behind, let me try my hand at that with more dedication this time, and maybe I'll succeed at that. This way I realised many of my untapped potential and Infact excelled at them better than others, which I thought I never could.

Who is your role-model and which qualities of his or her fascinated you?

Quite opposite to the standard opinion, my role model keeps changing. And I think there's nothing wrong with that, I believe role models must change with changing times and technology, for example currently my role model would be someone like Elon Musk or Mark Zuckerberg, who pursued their goal with complete dedication and endowed the world with some of the best technological innovations and also earned great success via them. At this point of my life I wish to have success just like them with some true innovations that change face of world, maybe later my role mode would change as per my goal in life later on. However, having said about changing role models, one quote from my mother still remains my constant inspiration in life - "Never look at the positives of your best achievements in life, look what you could have done better still. Because if you look at the positives you'll be satisfied, and when it comes to achcieving you must never be satisfied or else you will never be able to break limits"

How did your school help in achieving your dreams?

One thing that I have learnt is talents that you develop at a young age are the ones which you can hone perfect at later stages of your life. My school helped me realise these hidden talents of mine so that I can develop them then and later go on to excel at them in life. These talents helped shape my life such as - increasing my speed to grasp and increasing my attention span which helped to understand anything easily at once and prepare well for all important exams and interviews. My school also helped me develop my skills at playing chess, debating and extempore, this further helped me win many competitions in life which helped me in all round personality development.

According to you, what should be given more importance - Ambition, Success, Work or Money?

Out of Ambition, Success, Work and Money, I believe that the most important one is - Success. Success comes when you work hard towards your dream with complete perseverance and endurance (to face failure), and when you give all that input all other things - money, fame etc. automatically comes to you.

Can you tell any one incident that you still remember of your school life?

One small incident from school life, which also happened to change the way I look at life is, going in overconfident in a small exam with just one night's preparation hoping I would top the same. However, I was amongst the bottom ones. This made me realise that success doesn't come over night and taking little steps everyday towards your aim is much more easier and effective than taking a large leap in one day (which is also almost impossible)

What message would you like to impart to the students of MVP?

One of the most important life lesson that I would like to impart to the students of MVP is - always have a far fetched vision, have one goal and take little steps daily (no matter how small) to progress towards your final goal, and while you're at it keep enjoying life and live the moment.

RECIPE OF FIRELESS DAHI VADA!!

INGREDIENTS:

Bread (Brown/white), milk, curd, chaat masala, cumin powder, powdered sugar, thin sev, raisins, fresh pomegranate pearl (optional), finely chopped coriander leaves, tamarind chutney and green chutney.

FOLLOW THE FOLLOWING STEPS TO PREPARE IT:

Cut the edges of the bread slices. Pour some milk on the bread lightly. Press the bread with light hands to squeeze out the milk. Put some raisins in the centre of the bread and roll it in the shape of vada. Now take the curd in a container. Whisk it properly. Add powdered sugar in the whisked curd. For servings, keep the bread balls on a plate. Pour the curd on it. Garnish it with sev, coriander leaves, pomegranate and both the chutneys.

LIFE: THE MOST BEAUTIFUL PHASE

Life is like an ocean,
In which many things reside.
If a thing is taken away,
It doesn't stop waving its water
As it is meant to love for others.

Life is like a train.
As the train moves in a boring slow motion.
And then, it takes up speed,
And makes the journey adventurous.
And finally, it takes us to our destination.

Life is like everything
As it means everything to us.
Living a life
Is the most beautiful phase.
But we can't capture it always.
As it says, live all seven lives,
Making is peaceful and memorable
to others

DISCOVERING CREATIVITY: THE JOURNEY OF YELLOWANDYELLOW

Let me take to you on a colorful journey that began with mandalas and evolved into vibrant world of handmade cards at YELLOW AND YELLOW. I am thrilled to share how this artistic adventure unfolded during a time of challenges. Amidst the uncertainties of the pandemic, I found solace and inspiration in creating intricate mandalas. What started as passion soon found its way into Instagram, where I share my creations with the world. To my surprise, the response was overwhelming and soon requests for customized mandalas started pouring in. As I immersed myself in the creative process something magical happened. I started gaining interest in doing calligraphy. I practiced hours and hours, perfecting every stroke curves and letters. The transition from mandalas to handmade calligrapher cards began organically. The intricate designs and patterns that once adorned paper in the form of mandalas now transforms into heartfelt messages and personalized greetings. The turning point was when I thought that in today's world of messages where we are just a text away, why not to introduce something which people can cherish for lifetime. The magic happened when the beauty of creating something unique and meaningful collided with the joy of connecting with people through art. Orders transformed from mandalas to bespoke handmade cards, each carrying a piece of my passion and life. This journey, started from humble Instagram uploads during the pandemic, gradually into a small business focused on spreading joy through handmade creations. The evolution from mandalas to crafting handwriting letters and cards became a testament to adaptability, perseverance, and the power of creativity during challenging times. Yellow and yellow's growth wouldn't have been possible without the incredible and encouragement revived from the community. Your appreciation and trust have fueled this creative journey and continue to inspire new ideas and designs. As yellow and yellow moves forwards, I am excited about the possibility that lie ahead. My aim is to continue curating unique handmade cards that bring smiles and warmth to countless hearts, fostering connections and spreading positivity through creativity. I invite you all to explore our handmade cards, each crafted with love and passion, waiting to convey your heartfelt messages!

TECH PULSE

The recent developments in AI, particularly around a new algorithm called "Q*" (Q-star) have sparked considerable intrigue in the machine learning community. The current large language models (Chat-GPTs) are great at language-related tasks like translations or summaries but aren't good at math logic and strategy. They heavily rely on training data and can be considered 'information repeaters.' On the other hand, Q-star is said to showcase impressive logic and long-term strategizing. Q* extends beyond machine learning, touching on aspects of neuroscience and cognitive architecture, suggesting it could be more than just a technical achievement but a significant breakthrough in AI research and a possible concern for humanity. This is about the future of AI, where the models are good at complex reasoning, making decisions under uncertainty, and possessing emotional and social intelligence. It could potentially innovate, create original content, and understand context and nuances in ways that current AI systems cannot. This level of intelligence would enable the systems to perform tasks ranging from composing music to conducting scientific research, essentially embodying the versatility and depth of human intelligence in a machine. Many researchers believe that Q* is a big step towards Artificial General Intelligence (AGI), and serious AI regulations must be conducted before it's too late.

VISIT TO A TOURIST PLACE

There are many wonderful places in India, but the tourist place which I like the most is Nainital. It is one of the most beautiful hill stations in India. It is located at the foothills of the Kumaon range in Uttarakhand. Nainital is also known as the lake city. There are many places which make Nainital more beautiful like Naini lake, Boat house club, Mall road, Nainital zoo, etc. Nainital is also famous for its adventurous thrill like camping, parasailing, fun time jeep tours, caving, hill climbing, horse riding etc.

I like Nainital because of its greenery, peace and calmness in the environment.

This place has everything that a tourist wants to explore. It has a divine beauty that cannot be described but can only be felt. So, I request everyone to visit this place.

ANIMAL FARM

Review of Animal Farm :- George Orwell

It feels like a fairy tale, and the original title of the novella was in fact Animal Farm: A Fairy Story, and the short length just emphasises Orwell's meaning and the images that he created in this book. It's just packed with meaning and there's nothing to distract you in the book because it's so short. I can't say anything else about this book without it turning into an essay so I'll just say once again that it's an amazing book and it's one of my new favourites.

Content in short: George Orwell's novel Animal Farm tells the story of farm animals that revolt against the farmer. Following the revolution, the pigs take power over the other animals and the farm begins to fall apart. The pigs grow stronger in power while the other animals suffer and work for them.

SUNSETS

Sunsets are like nature's artwork. The sky transforms into a canvas of vibrant colours, blending hues of orange, pink, and purple. As the sun dips below the horizon, it casts a golden glow that illuminates the world. It's a breathtaking sight that reminds us of the beauty and serenity of the natural world. Sunsets are simply magical! The sky turns into a stunning masterpiece, with the sun bidding farewell for the day. The warm hues of orange, pink, and purple paint the sky, creating a breathtaking backdrop. It's a moment of tranquillity and awe, where time seems to stand still. Watching a sunset is like witnessing nature's own enchanting show.

CYBERCRIME CONTINUATION

1. Email fraud is a type of internet fraud that involves intentionally deceiving people for personal gain or to harm them. 2. Identity fraud: Identity fraud occurs when someone by incorrect means obtains and uses another person's personal information, such as their name, Social Security number, credit card details, or other sensitive data, with the intent to commit fraudulent activities. This type of crime can have severe consequences for the victim, including financial losses, damage to their credit score, and legal troubles. 3. Payment fraud is when someone steals a person's payment information and uses it to make unauthorized purchases. This can include, stealing a credit or debit card, copying a credit card number, taking over a victim's account, stealing checking account data, forging checks etc. The cardholder or owner will notice the unauthorized transactions and raise a dispute. 4. Cyber extortion steals valuable data and threatens to release it to the public. It is a form of online crime in which individual or groups use digital means to threaten victims, to harm, damage, or release sensitive information if the ransom is not paid. 5. Ransom ware is a kind of malware that encrypts systems. Encryption uses coding known as Cipher text. Encrypted data or programs can only be deciphered by using an encryption key. It makes critical systems unusable until the cybercriminal receives payment. It can enable extortion and uses machine or program functionality against its victims, but extortion uses data.
